The folk zoology of Southeast Asian wildmen. [Review of the book Images of the wildman in Southeast Asia. An anthropological perspective, G. Forth, 2008]
Corbey, R.H.A.

Published in:
The Newsletter, International Institute of Asian Studies

Publication date:
2009

Citation for published version (APA):
CHINA’S RELATIONS WITH AFRICAN NATIONS have changed dramatically over the past decade, and the geopolitical landscape of the continent has been redefined by China’s emergence as a global power. As China’s influence in Africa grows, so does the challenge of managing its presence, not only for China but also for other emerging actors. How sustainable is the Chinese approach against a backdrop of mounting African expectations, concerns from Western actors and the need for a more balanced and responsible international order? This book examines these challenges, considering Africa as a market for trade and investment, as well as a source of conflict and instability. It offers a comprehensive analysis of the factors driving China’s engagement in Africa, and the implications for the continent’s development and stability.

Chinese Language and Discourse
An International and Interdisciplinary Journal
Edited by Michael Kemper, Raoul Motika

The Newsletter
University of Oregon
The Chinese Academy of Social Sciences,
The U.S. Census Bureau, Washington D.C.
Nanjing University
The Newsletter
New Journal 2010

This Review provides a comparative history of Islamic educational institutions, presenting the pre-revolutionary educational traditions - including, but not limited to, the Islamic educational institutions of the Ottoman Empire, Iran, and Central Asia - alongside the Islamic educational institutions of the Soviet Union, Afghanistan, and Southeast Asia. The book offers a nuanced analysis of the social, political, and religious factors that have shaped the development of Islamic education in these countries, and explores the implications for contemporary educational policies.

The Review
IIAS and Routledge. 2009
email: iiasnews@iias.nl

The Newsletter
Volume 12 | Winter 2009

The Review
The Spirit World
Man of the woods
ebu gogo?

Forth, 2005.