

Bio

Leon Oerlemans is Professor of Organizational Dynamics in the Department of Organization Studies, Tilburg University, the Netherlands. He also is Extraordinary Professor Economics of Innovation at the University of Pretoria, Department of Engineering and Technology Management, South Africa. He holds a PhD from Eindhoven University of Technology (1996).

His research focuses on the analysis of adaptive behavior of organizations and can be characterized as theory-based empirical research. Research topics include innovation, temporary organizations, 'green consumption', and inter-organizational relationships and networks. His research has been published in a wide range of high-ranked journals like Journal of Management, Organization Studies, Organization Science, Research Policy, Technovation, Journal of Business Research, and International Journal of Project Management